

INTRODUCING THE ASI COMPLAINTS MECHANISM

ASI runs a global standards and certification program that covers the aluminium value chain from bauxite mining through to final products. A Complaints Mechanism is available for stakeholders that have concerns about our program.

BEFORE MAKING A COMPLAINT TO ASI:

Have you tried first raising the complaint directly with the organisation or person subject to the complaint? This gives them an opportunity to respond and ideally fix the situation directly.

WHO CAN MAKE A COMPLAINT?

- Members and their employees
- ASI Auditors
- Other stakeholders, including communities, NGOs, workers and Indigenous Peoples

WHAT TYPES OF COMPLAINTS ARE CONSIDERED?

Complaints can be related to:

- Certification status of a Member
- Accreditation status of an Auditor
- Conduct of Members or Auditors during ASI audits
- Conduct of ASI with regards to its governance, policies and procedures
- Conduct of individuals involved in ASI governance
- Any other matter that ASI considers it should be involved in, to help resolve

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU SUBMIT A COMPLAINT?

Every Complaint submitted to ASI will be carefully reviewed and responded to. Where a Complaint is within scope, it will follow our published processes. This can include initiating a dialogue process between the parties or a formal investigation conducted by an independent panel.

DOES IT COST MONEY?

Where external costs are involved as part of the process, the parties to the Complaint will need to agree on the sharing of costs.

However ASI will generally waive the external costs of Complaints or appeals processes where:

- The Complaint is raised by Indigenous Peoples organisations
- The Complaint is raised by small civil society groups or affected communities
- The Complaint has been raised by an individual whistleblower, unless the Complaint is found to be malicious

For Complaints involving Indigenous Peoples, ASI will discuss with Complainants and the Indigenous Peoples Advisory Forum on a case by case basis how translations and other support can be provided where necessary.
